Jalovick News 2008

In May of 2008, Dana and I celebrated 20 years at WWC and August started year 21. It's a funny feeling when I think about the fact that our current students weren't even born yet when we started at WWC. 2008 flew by for us. Besides all the activity that WWC generates in our lives, our family life was always on the move. I don't intend to write too much about our family this year – just some highlights.

Dana – Still our office manager at WWC but hoping to quit soon. Her boss isn't too happy about that but her husband fully supports her decision. Many of you know that Dana started a home business with Arbonne International, a health & wellness business. She loves what she does and especially enjoys all the relationships she's developed through the business. And, she has really enjoyed reconnecting with a number of alumni. She is a very busy woman with WWC, Arbonne and overseeing Ben's skating career.

Dan – after completing his education in auto mechanics at Wyoming Tech at their PA campus, he returned home and worked for the new Sears store in Hayward. He was the main utility man, organizing the warehouse, unloading trucks by himself, loading customer vehicles by himself, etc. and while the pay wasn't all that great, he ended up buff and 20 pounds lighter. He worked odd jobs during the summer and at the end of the summer he made the decision to attend PBU Langhorne for a year. He got a part time job working at a machine shop in Langhorne and likes that better than homework.

Phil – after attending PBU for two years, Phil made the decision to take a year off and apply for an aviation mechanics program at Penn Tech in central PA (a Penn State school). He worked for Lake Owen during pre-camp and then painting houses for a guy from our church. He worked into November until it got too cold to paint. He got a part time job grooming the Birkie trail but is only on call when we get a big snowfall. He's been enjoying the outdoor life – pheasant hunting with me in South Dakota, shooting his first deer in rifle season, fishing the Brule for big trout, jigging for pan fish and walleye on frozen lakes.

Adam – Adam graduated from high school this year. He ran track again and his relay teams did very well but didn't make it to State this year. He enjoyed the life of a rock star as he and a bunch of friends had a band and played a number of gigs around the area. I called Adam the lead screamer. We had a big graduation bash for him in May and he worked all summer for Pete Zweig at Sublime Subs. He had a fun but hectic summer hanging out with friends, many late nights, full social calendar to the point where he started his freshman year at PBU Langhorne with mono. He handled it pretty well and it kept him in his room and studying for the first part of the semester.

Ben – Ben is now 15 and done being a little kid. I think this is the first year we didn't get him a Lego for Christmas. He is a freshman in high school and Ben's thing is figure skating.

He trains in Hayward and Duluth during the school year and this summer he trained for 6 weeks with a coach in central PA. In October he competed in a Regional Competition, held in Minneapolis. The Regionals are a step in the process of going to US Junior Nationals. He was the first skater from our area to ever qualify for the Regionals. He did well, but not well enough to go to Nationals. He will be training all year to compete in the Regionals in Illinois in 09. One highlight for Ben this summer was a school trip to Washington, D.C. and New York City.

sometimes. God has worked in my life in so many different ways throughout all these years and I still consider it a privilege to serve Him here at the best little campus around. Read my Ramblings and that will fill in enough about what I've been up to.
